

Project Management

Ingersoll-Rand can provide complete general contracting services on many types of projects. We offer complete, turn-key solutions including project management and coordination, system design, engineering, installation and follow-up service and maintenance.

Project Management

We have the expertise to handle the project management of many construction jobs from start to finish. We can be your single-source partner, with regional project management teams that make sure your project comes in on time, within budget, and with minimal headaches along the way.

Professional HVAC Engineering and System Design

We will design and engineer your HVAC systems for optimal performance and lowest operating costs. As an independent supplier, we can make recommendations on the best available HVAC technologies for your specific installation.

Installation

Ingersoll-Rand's experienced and well-trained installers help ensure that each installation meets the highest standards of quality and reliable operation.

Custom Estimation Hardware & Software

Our technically advanced estimation systems help us quickly generate an extremely comprehensive bill of materials for faster, more organized and more accurate system design. Our bids include the smallest details to help reduce change orders and eliminate unexpected surprises.
