Protocol Refrigeration System Helps ShopRite of Selden Achieve EPA GreenChill Silver Certification

ShopRite of Selden, New York, has been awarded the EPA GreenChill Silver Certification. The award, distributed by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), recognizes food retailers who have implemented sustainable cooling systems, thereby reducing refrigerant emissions and decreasing their impact on the ozone layer and climate change.

"Protocol allowed us to work within the framework of the store to create a custom, distributed refrigeration system that worked with our existing structure," said John Amaral, Project Engineer for Wakefern Food Corp., the marketing and distribution arm for ShopRite stores. "This flexibility allowed the store to open and begin serving the people of Selden quickly and efficiently." Read more...

RETAIL OPTIMIZATION

Maximizing Your ROI

Hussmann energy-saving solutions, such as EcoVision doors for medium temp, multi-deck cases and EcoShine II LED lighting, can help you reduce your utility bills and improve your bottom line. In addition, when you upgrade your existing equipment with these energy-saving enhancements, rebates or incentives may be available from your local utility company. The Hussmann Retail Optimization group can help you take advantage of these opportunities.
